Walk in party states that her son and her sons father did not show up to there scheduled meeting to exchange the son today. Exchange was to take place in Somerville. Father of the child resides in West Bridgewater. Both parties have joint custody the father has physical custody. In accordance with the civil divorce agreement/agreement between both parties the father is to turn the custody of the the child over to the mother on Friday. After speaking with the father he was advised by his attorney that he did not have to turn the child over to the mothers custody. The mother was upset because she had not recently spoken with her son. A phone call was facilitated at the police station between the mother and the son. The mother was advised that this was a civil issue and needed to be addressed in court. The father was advised on a recorded line that there was a possibility that he could be held in contempt of court if he is violating a court order. Father was in station earlier today and a log note was made pertaining to this issue. Refer to call number 16-7700.
